NYCPM HOLDS FOURTH ANNUAL RESIDENCY FAIR

Representatives from more than forty hospitals, from twelve states, attended the recent NYCPM Residency Fair.

On Friday, September 11th, the New York College of Podiatric Medicine (NYCPM) held its fourth annual student-initiated, student-run Residency Fair, at which representatives from more than forty hospitals, from twelve states, talked with students about their hospitals' externships and residency programs. Because the Residency Fair enables NYCPM students to have exposure to residencies without the travel, virtually all second- and third-year students attended, as did many first- and fourth-year students. The Residency Fair was organized by Jamie Chaffo and Kristy Muscatello, both of the Class of 2011. Lunch was provided during the four-hour Fair through the generosity of the NYCPM Alumni Association and the New York State Podiatric Medical Association. According to students as well as the hospitals' representatives, the Residency Fair was a resoundingly successful and informative event.
