

Adjunct Instructor Bryan Kagan, DPM ('80), Passes Away

Bryan Kagan, DPM, a member of NYCPM's Class of 1980, passed away in mid-January. Dr. Kagan was an Adjunct Instructor in the Department of Community Medicine for over 10 years. He taught 'Introduction to Forensic Podiatry,' a course popular with second- and third-year students and many others. That course introduced students to the world of forensic sciences and the discipline of forensic podiatry, a subspecialty of podiatric medicine. Students were instructed on basic techniques to assist in the criminal and civil investigation process. NYCPM was the only podiatric medical school to offer this course.

He was a member of the IAI - International Association for Identification Forensic Podiatry Science and Practice Subcommittee, and was a member of the Chartered Society of Forensic Sciences. Dr. Kagan had a private practice in White Plains, NY and was on staff at White Plains Hospital. He was Secretary/Treasurer of the American Society of Forensic Podiatry. He was also a member of the American Podiatric Medical Association and associate member of the American Bar Association. He was married with three children.
