

First Podiatric Summit in Collaboration with Mt. Sinai Endovascular Symposium Features NYCPM

Jeffrey Cusack, DPM presents at the "Podiatry-Specific Topics for DPMs" portion of the Mount Sinai Peripheral Vascular Symposium.

For the first time, the annual Mount Sinai Peripheral Vascular Symposium, held October 16th, included a full agenda of "Podiatry-Specific Topics for DPMs," and faculty from NYCPM comprised most of the expert presenters. Organized by Scientific Co-Chairs Anthony R. Iorio, DPM, MPH and Michael J. Trepal, DPM, FACFAS the afternoon-long program explored a variety of issues related to podiatric manifestations of vascular disease before a full audience.

Elizabeth Bonarigo, DPM spoke about a "Multidisciplinary Approach to CLI," and Mark Kosinski, DPM discussed "Diabetic Foot Osteomyelitis," followed by Margarita Presman, DPM's discussion of "Radiographic Imaging and Evaluation in Patients with Vascular Disease," Jeffrey Cusack, DPM's presentation "Offloading Science vs. Offloading Nonsense," Itay Wisner, MD (of NYHHC/Elmhurst)'s discussion of "Plastic Surgery and Problem Wounds," and Johanna Godoy, DPM's exploration of "The Charcot Foot: When to Choose Between Internal and External Fixation."
